SPORT Snap-Shots

MORRIS MILLER

HE SHOULD GRIN.
The gridiron heroes soon will poke each other on the jaws, and mangle ears amid the cheers and deafening applause. A man is dusting out his shop—his name, it seems, is Palmer. His mood is gay and blithe today, his sign reads: The Embalmer.

Big league managers want huskies on their pitching staffs. The large, long-armed, raw-boned lads are the choice of the major leagues and all the scouts have been instructed to grab everything six feet or over that thinks it can pitch. Early in the season the brush was gone over with a fine-tooth comb and thus far results have been rather disappointing. Big boys like Matty, Coombs, Ed Walsh and Tesreau grow on every bush (league). In fact the whole scouting business this season has been rather dull and comparatively little in the way of promising material has been found to report to the big show. Managers are coming to value more and more the twirlers with the giant frames and middle-sized or small pitchers aren't very much in demand. The big boys stand more work.

The matter of age doesn't seem to make a very great difference in tennis. In the many state and city tournaments that have been played all over the country of late there have been youngsters of fifteen and sixteen pitted against men old enough to be their fathers. The general 'round showing made by mere boys at tennis this year has been one of the most remarkable features of the season. Of course the California child wonders, Johnson and Schuchman, were the bright particular stars of the youthful element and are no doubt the best known of the boy phenoms. But there are others well worthy of a low strum on the panyard lyre. F. A. Drew, a sixteen-year-old of St. Louis, worked his way up to the third round of a very hotly contested tournament here. C. C. Caner, another youth, reached the second round before meeting defeat. And young W. McKim cleaned up everything in his path till he met Nat Niles. In fact the whole thing of our young ones seems to amplify our chances for the Davis cup in years to come. Some great tennis players will surely be developed from the wealth of material we have on hand. The very extreme in the matter of age was shown in the work of Richard Stevens and H. W. Slocum, two graveyards of the courts whose names were household words some thirty years ago. Though they lacked the strength and pep of their earlier days, they both made excellent showings through the use of old experience, generalship and wonderful wrists. The famous one-armed player, W. F. Barker, was a feature of the season. His ability to serve the ball in the air and serve with a deadly precision was the wonder of all beholders.

Most all of us knew that Joe Tinker, had he no one else to bat against than Christy Mathewson, would be able to pile up a 500 average every season. It's funny but it's the fact, and Matty knows it. Lately Rube Marquard has discovered that he too has a "Tinker" and it's none other than little Sherwood Magee of the Phillies. Look what Sherwood has been able to do to "Blossom" this season. Magee has faced Marquard just ten times this season so far, and in those ten trips to the plate he has poked out two doubles and three homers. In a game on May 5 Magee made two homers off Marquard and on August 28 he got a double. Then on August 28 he cleaned up with a double and a homer. Two of Marquard's defeats are all Sherwood's fault. Once—and once alone—Rube struck Magee out and that was on May 2.

SEASON FOR HUNTING WILD FOWL AT HAND

Sportsmen Preparing to Pursue Wild Ducks and Geese—Can Fire First Shots on Sunday.

Janesville sportsmen are cleaning their shot-guns, laying in a store of their favorite shells, and getting their hunting kits in readiness for the waterfowl season which opens Sunday. That day will see an exodus of them to Lake Koshkonong, Lake Kegonsa, and the northern lakes and marshes where ducks and geese abound. Nearly three hundred licenses will have been issued by the county clerk before his office closes this afternoon. Each license authorizes the holder to kill any kind of game that the statutes permit and many of the licenses that have been taken out are for the partridge season, which opens on Oct. 1—and the deer season, which will begin on November 10.

Good sport should be enjoyed by duck hunters this season, it reports from the interior of the state are to be accepted. Although the fall flight of water fowl has scarcely begun, owing to the continued warm weather, the lakes are beginning to harbor mallard and teal in large quantities, with an occasional flock of bluebirds and now and then a redhead and a canvasback. On many lakes and rivers hunters began operations last Sunday, regardless of the law, and in some localities large bags were secured. On the Wolf river, above Winneconne, dozens of guns were out on Sunday and Monday. And further north—in Oneida, Vilas and Iron counties—it is said many partridges are being killed.

Reports from Horton are to the effect that the marsh is simply teeming with the birds. There has been some poaching, but the efforts of the club men have resulted in giving the birds pretty good protection until the opening of the season.

Coot, plover, rail, rice hens and snipe appear to be numerous. Snipe in particular have appeared at all the hunting grounds in much larger numbers than for several years past. At one time the coot or mudhen, was rarely shot, but the high price of live, has brought a realization of the fact that it properly dressed and cooked it is an exceedingly delectable dish.

On many of these lakes and rivers game wardens keep a watchful eye for violators of the game laws, but their attention largely is directed to the poachers. This is so much greater than the violation of the shooting law that wardens give all the attention possible to the pursuit of fishermen using gill nets rather than to hunters making small bags of ducks and the lowly mudhen—now afforded the same protection that is given his more aristocratic companions.

Men who have been in the north woods the last summer declare that there are more plentiful this season than for many years. One party in Vilas county counted eleven deer in a boat trip that covered less than fourteen hours. In Ashland county seven deer in one herd were seen by a party of fishermen. The large number of deer in the woods is ascribed to strict enforcement of the game laws, the limiting of the number of deer that may be killed by each hunter to one and the fact that the lumber camps are disappearing from the woods. It has been charged many times that in the old logging days men were employed by the day to kill deer for the camps—or were paid from three to five cents a pound for venison. The camps were far from the haunts of the game wardens and the logging camp hunters seldom were molested.

TILLIE TO OPPOSE CRANDALL SUNDAY

Return Game With Belvidere Nationals Promises Air Tight Contest for Janesville Fans.

Although the Cardinals were given a bad trouncing on Labor Day, the entire team is out to down the Belvidere Nationals in their contest Sunday afternoon at the Driving Park. The Nationals won a ten inning pitchers' battle at Belvidere a week ago Sunday by a two to one score and the Cards are out to even up matters.

Crandall, after a week's rest, will be ready to oppose the famed Tillie and as he outpitched him at Belvidere the local fans are looking for him to triumph over the Albany man. The Belvidere nine has strengthened its fielding as the weak spots are filled with Elgin players of note, their catcher, Ryan, first baseman and outfielder being from the White Sox. The third baseman is especially fast, having a wing that will rival Ryan's in accuracy and speed. Wilson will be Crandall's battery mate and the battle promises to be a pitching duel between Tillie and Crandall.

Jam While You Wait.

A unique record was recently made by a well-known English jam concern. Adjoining the factory is a strawberry plantation which produced the berries for this year's jam. Within the space of one hour the strawberries were picked, boiled into jam, and placed into jars ready for packing.

PREPARES TO MAKE ALIMONY PAYMENTS

John Doherty Goes to Work After Being Confined in Jail for Contempt Of the Court.

John Doherty, who has been confined in the county jail since about August 7 when a warrant for his arrest on the charge of contempt of court was issued because of his failure to pay alimony to his wife and daughter, was released last Monday when he went to work in a local factory, agreed to pay alimony at the rate of $3 a week, besides what was due, and to leave liquor alone. Doherty was not sentenced under the new commitment law, nor for any definite period, but its spirit has been observed in the disposition of his case. He was given to understand that if he took a drink he would be remanded to jail for thirty days and given alcohol and water diet. He has solemnly promised to make good this time.

Myers Theatre

"IN OLD DUBLIN."

Augustus Pitou, Jr. will present the favorite singing actor, Fiske O'Hara in his latest and most successful, comedy romance, "In Old Dublin," at Myers Theatre Sunday. Fiske O'Hara, an Irishman, is needless to state that this play like all of those presented by Mr. O'Hara, is of a refined, dainty type and thoroughly free from anything risqué or vulgar. It is a story of heart interest and fascinating romance. The story revolves around one Neil Powers, who is building a yacht for a wealthy banker of Dublin. Some of the spotting Dublin Castle set fear the banker's making a bag of gold and a poor chance against the Irish built yacht in the race for the Queen's Cup, represent to the wife of the banker, a social climber, that her chances of entering the exclusive Castle set will be small if her husband finances a boat to compete with those in which that set are interested. She, alarmed at the outlook, pretends to her husband to stop work on his yacht. Neil, who expects to win fame and fortune through the success of the boat is in despair, when Rose Stratton, a young Irish-American girl, turns up. The funds through her guardian, and the boat is completed. Neil sails his "Irish Rose" to victory and wins the hand of the plucky girl who risked her entire fortune to see that justice was done him. A number of songs are introduced in the performance, in which the superb tenor voice of Mr. O'Hara is heard at its best. There will be an added musical feature in violin solos and duets between the acts, rendered by musicians of the company.

Manager Pitou, who is one of the most conscientious of producers, has fully sustained his reputation in the elaborate stage settings he has provided for "In Old Dublin" and he has selected a company of unusual excellence to support his star in which are the following well known players, Midge Tyrone, Gertrude Maitland, Marie Quinn, Rose Watson, Lou Ripley, Emma Naylor, Elizabeth Paul, J. P. Sullivan, Eugene Frazier, Jefferson Hall, Albert West, Byron Russell, P. J. Foy and William Lowman.

one concern that is ready to remove to Janesville under conditions that will be easily met. It is of interest to every citizen of Janesville and the results of Monday's meeting will doubtless be shown in the future prosperity of the city.

Possibly one reason why the president declines to recognize the Mexican government is the fear that Huerta will appoint Henry Lane Wilson the Mexican minister to Washington.

In Wall street Sulzer was a lamb. In Albany he was a goat. And there are people who think they can see in him a resemblance to the animal that spoke to Balaam.

Marshall Field's widow objects to paying $50,000 income tax in England on her American fortune. Nevertheless that is cheaper than marrying an English lord.

It is to be hoped the little social journeys of Personal Representative Lind and Rear Admiral Fletcher will not be marred by any little cases.

Just to show that a real democrat is no respecter of persons, the new governor of the Philippines has arranged to call on the emperor of Japan.

THE GOVERNOR'S CHOICE.

By the appointment of Harry L. Maxfield as judge of the Janesville municipal court, Governor McGovern has made the local court his plaything for political purposes. He has ignored the local conditions that exist, has placed politics above the wishes of the people who seek a clean administration of the law, and named as judge one of the men who stood for lawlessness, as opposed to the law-abiding element of Janesville. Mr. Maxfield may live up to the requirements of the office, but his past performances as city attorney make this doubtful. Mr. Maxfield, personally, is an honest, clean young man. He has, however, let his ambitions run away with his better judgment. He has looked for preferment by the masses at the sacrifice of the classes.

In making the appointment Governor McGovern evidently considered only his own personal machine. He refused to listen seriously to the claims of the other candidates, to consider the local conditions which exist in Janesville, the endorsement of the men behind Mr. Carpenter, Mr. Lange or Mr. Tallman, but made his appointment purely on a personal basis of service performed in the political arena for the cause of the Bull Moose party.

The case was presented fairly and squarely to him. He can not hide behind any subterfuge, of lack of knowledge of the local situation, and the importance of putting a strong man in charge of the court just at this time, for it was all explained to him in detail by men who have just finished the fight of their lives in the cause of decency and succeeded in re-electing Mayor Fathers head of the civic government despite the efforts of Mr. Maxfield and his associates.

Governor McGovern ignored the wishes of the majority, as evidenced by the recent recall election, and rewarded Mr. Maxfield by the office upon a purely personal basis, ignoring the claims of others, as of Mr. Lange, who has been a progressive republican, but perhaps unfortunately for him, supports Senator La Follette rather than the Bull Moose end of the party; Mr. Tallman, who had like tendencies, although tinged with the Bull Moose pitch; and Mr. Carpenter, one of the old-time war horses of the republican party.

Mr. Maxfield's appointment will doubtless please his friends and followers. He will doubtless have to sit in judgment on many of his erstwhile supporters. The office of municipal judge in a city the size of Janesville is a sinecure. Mr. Maxfield has stated that he intends to administer justice to all without fear or favor and it is to be hoped he will live up to inclination in this respect.

The court has important functions to perform. Functions that must be performed without fear or favor, that the law may be administered honestly and justly. It is possible that Mr. Maxfield will view matters in this light and upon taking office will be the judge and will administer the business of his court as it should be and not as a favored few would desire it.

Cave them absolutely free. He scribbled tables for a mile in the true detective style. Worrying he couldn't shrink. Didn't leave much time to work. No one seemed to realize. Not was willing to surmise. What the world was coming to, same as Ebenezer Dine. Some folks thought the future bright. He said they were fools, all right. So he worried night and day, lost his nerve and say, he was thin as any rat. Care, you know, will kill a cat. And he left this vale of tears. At the age of thirty years.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

THE MAN WHO STRIKES FIRST. I have always observed it is these quarter hours that decide the fate of battle—Napoleon.

I owe everything in the world to being always a quarter of an hour beforehand—Admiral Nelson.

One of the secrets of most great generals is that they strike first. This was true of Napoleon. It was also true of General Grant in our own civil war.

It was true of Admiral Nelson, the greatest English naval hero.

All of us have to fight battles—if not with bayonets, then with muscle, brain or moral forces. Competition is a battle, and we are all competing in one way or another.

Energy, promptitude and swift action are as necessary in peace as in war.

The man wins who goes after a thing while the other fellow is thinking about it.

Of course, wisdom and common sense must be used. But where one man has lost through rashness ten have failed through procrastination.

John Wesley once remarked to a dilatory cab driver, "I have lost ten minutes forever." That is a loss which can never be repaid. There may be other ten minutes, but these never return.

Moreover if we get in the habit of procrastinating these others will be lost in the same way.

Time is but the opportunity to achieve. We talk of "killing time," but this phrase is a misnomer. All that we kill is our own chances.

Time to the wise man is a treasure to be exchanged for other treasures—knowledge, wealth, fame, attainment or service.

Time to a fool is but an invitation to folly, a means of self destruction. Time to the idler is a bore.

Usually it is safe to judge a man by the value he places on time—it is a reflection of his own real value.

Time is the one thing we cannot hoard. We must use it or it escapes us.

Some poet has said that opportunity knocks but once on each of our doors, but in reality every moment is an opportunity.

Time is the great democrat—it comes alike to all. But, neglected, this hour—now—returns no more forever.

To a Napoleon, Nelson or Grant a quarter hour means the difference between victory and defeat; to all of us it may mean the difference between success and failure.

FORUM SOCIETY MAY AGAIN BE STARTED

Club of High School Boys Which Was Disbanded by Superintendent Buell May Be Re-organized.

It is possible that the Forum literary society, an organization of high school boys, which was disbanded by Superintendent H. C. Buell last spring with failure to comply with the rules of the school in securing permission to hold a social function, may be reorganized this fall. Mr. Buell stated this morning that he would reorganize the society if there were any of the high school instructors who would act as critic. The society was conducted without the services of a faculty critic last year, but if the organization is again started a faculty representative will attend the meetings. It is understood that one of the teachers has consented to serve.

There are ten or fifteen boys in the upper classes who are former Forum members. Fred Cummings, president last spring, and James Stewart, vice president, were both members of the 1912 graduating class. Colton Sayre, Carl Erick, George Spohn and Stewart Motat, were all former officers of the club.

AGED WOMAN'S FLIGHT SOURCE OF ANXIETY

Mrs. Emily Schicker Goes into Closet at Night, Stumbles, and is Unable to Get Up.

Neighbors of Mrs. Emily Schicker, eighty-three years old, who resides alone at 314 Prospect avenue were concerned for her safety yesterday morning when they saw that none of the shades had been raised. On entering the house and making an investigation they found the old lady arisen very early in the morning to go out, but in the darkness went into the closet instead. There she stumbled into a trunk that caused her to fall into a sitting posture and she was unable to get up without assistance. She also hurt her arm. There was an open outside window in the closet so that she was in no danger of smothering but the excitement led to an attack of illness which was serious for one of her advanced age.

Today she was considerably improved and was able to sit out on her front porch this afternoon. Her relatives have been attending her wants and a physician has her under his care.

LOCAL WOMEN TO TEACH AT BETHANY COLLEGE

The Misses Amy Woodruff, Mae Granger and Gertrude Kelle leave in a few days for Topeka, Kansas, where they will take up work at Bethany college, an Episcopal school. Miss Kelle will be secretary to the bishop. Miss Woodruff will teach dramatic art and physical culture, and Miss Granger will teach domestic art. Miss Matilda Bailey of this city is the principal of the college. She left two weeks ago to take up her work.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN RURAL SCHOOLS

Nearly Two-thirds Now Have Modern Heating and Ventilation—Consolidation Sentiment.

Nearly two-thirds of the rural schools in the county now have modern heating and ventilation systems approved by the State Department of Education, according to the statement of County Superintendent O. D. Antidel. Only the smaller and poorer districts are still unprovided. Improvements of a minor character have been made in a number of the country school buildings during the vacation. In district school No. 4, a town of Rock, that in the village of Arton a new furnace is being installed to heat both rooms and changes are being made in the seating arrangements. New slate black-boards were installed some time ago.

Improvements in some districts have been put off from time to time with the argument that consolidation of rural schools was near at hand and that it would be poor economy to improve buildings that would soon be out of use. Other this argument is a mere pretext as no steps are taken toward consolidation. Some districts are in favor of consolidation, but as long as others refuse their consent and approval no action can be taken.

The consolidation movement is making greater headway in the northwestern part of the state than in the older counties. State laws for some years past have made it necessary for country schools to be consolidated and have offered what is equivalent to a bounty for consolidation, and each succeeding legislature makes the law more liberal in its provisions.

EASTERN STAR CLASS HAS OPENING MEETING

The Eastern Star Study Class met with Mrs. Charles Wright on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Wright and Miss Sue Hutchinson were the hostesses. The class decided to take up a miscellaneous program for the winter. During the afternoon readings were given by Mesdames C. V. Kerch, Harry Garbutt and Mrs. C. H. Weirick. In all the years that we've been in business, we've never had a line of wash boilers that so completely satisfied our customers as these famous Cream City Wash Boilers, made by Geuder, Paeschke & Frey Co., of Milwaukee. ## Sizing Up A Dollar

There are three ways to learn the value of a dollar. The first is to spend it and see what you can get for it. The second is to earn it and see what you give for it. The third is to save it and learn for all things it might buy if you were weak enough to spend it.

And the best way to save it is by investing it in a First National Savings Book.

M'GOVERN APPOINTS MAXFIELD AS JUDGE; TAKES OFFICE SOON

Will Assume Responsibilities of Municipal Court Bench at as Early Date as Possible.

Harry L. Maxfield, appointed late yesterday afternoon by Governor F. B. McGovern as judge of the Janesville municipal court, will qualify for his position and take the bench as soon as the necessary arrangements required by the law can be taken. Official notice of the appointment which will be sent to the county clerk as well as to the city clerk, was not received today but will doubtless be in their hands by tomorrow. Two-thirds of the amount of the bond required of the new official is to be paid with the county clerk and the other one-third with the city clerk. A separate oath of office is filed with each clerk. Mr. Maxfield will receive his certificate of judgeship as soon as he makes his filings with the county clerk.

Election in April. Although the exact reading of the governor's appointment has not been received, it is generally understood that Mr. Maxfield will hold office until a special election can be called to elect his successor. If that is the case, which is also Mr. Maxfield's understanding of the situation, the appointment will be in effect until June 1st, 1915, as a special election will be held in April of 1914. His appointment will not be for Judge F. H. Field's unexpired term, which would be June 1st, 1917. The election next April will decide who will be the incumbent for the unexpired term.

Word of the appointment was first received at the Gazette office at five o'clock Thursday afternoon. A telephone message from Elmer A. McGraw, private secretary to the governor, gave the news.

Mr. Maxfield's first definite information of his appointment was received from the Gazette office which called him on the phone shortly after five o'clock.

"This is the first word I have received," said Mr. Maxfield, "of my Madison shortly after five o'clock this afternoon. I was informed by the governor that he would make the appointment today after he had thoroughly gone over the correspondence on the subject. I was given no indication that I would receive the appointment."

Bragi. In the Scandinavian mythology Bragi was the god of poetry. He was a warlike personage, who scorned all verse but that which rang with the praises of gods and warriors. Iduna, Bragi's wife, kept certain apples in a basket, which the gods, when they felt age approaching, had only to taste in order to regain their youth. On the approach of the great Twilight at the end of time, this fruit was to lose its power.

WEAK
BRING GOOD PRICE

Poorman Suffering in Hands of Cold Storage Men. Butter at 34c Mark and Eggs 24c.

A sharp advance in the price on butter and eggs have added to the white man's burden by putting the high cost of living up another notch. Butter, without any apparent reason has gone up to 34 and 35 cents a pound in the past week and eggs are retailing at 21 and 23 cents per dozen, against 20 and 22c less than a week ago.

"There does not seem to be any real reason for the advance in butter," said one of the local grocers today. "The pastures are still good in southern Wisconsin and the long drought in the west ought not to affect the markets here. The high price of meat may have something to do with it. The demand still holds up for butter, as it is a necessity and the demand exceeds the supply, probably because of the trusts salting a goodly supply of the butter in cold storage for record breaking prices this winter."

"Eggs," he continued, "are always scarce at this time of the season, as a hen, even of good pronounced breed will only lay so many eggs a season. The spring months are the laying season and eggs are equal to the demand then. At present the hens are taking a vacation from supplying the nation with hen fruit and the consumers go right on using the cold storage men's chance to get in with their artificially high prices. This makes a short supply of fresh eggs because of the demand and the shortage and the high prices on eggs is natural."

Michigan peaches opened on the markets today with fair quality, and as yet there has been no big demand for them. In size the peaches are equal to any of previous years but as yet the quality is lacking several degrees. Fish went out of the Janesville stores this morning with a jump and before noon housewives were unable to procure fish for their Friday dinner. Trout still reigns the favorite, as the hot weather has not affected its eating qualities being a lake fish in habiting the deep waters, as much as the river pike and bass.

MODERN INVENTIONS
The Press Agent.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slush."

A PRESS agent is a philanthropist engaged in manufacturing news to order and giving it away free of charge.

News is ordinarily supposed to happen but the press agent doesn't sit around waiting for things to happen. Besides he can make better news than can happen any day.

It sometimes takes a year for a real good news story in an ordinary city to grow. But a press agent can sit down at a typewriter with plenty of paper and in half an hour he can produce a mob in which 18 men were fatally injured while trying to catch a glimpse of the new street costume of comic opera star.

When two nations desire to produce a war they fool around for months with the preliminaries. But a press agent can plunge three continents into sanguinary conflict over the birthplace of a great tenor in forty-five minutes by the clock. It is nothing at all for him. If necessary he could get two more nations mad in another ten minutes.

The press agent does all this from his home. After he has produced his news he does not board it away in a bomb proof safe. Instead he goes to the nearest newspaper office and offers it to the city editor free of all charge with a cigar and

James H. Boyd, Whose Funeral Was Held Here Wednesday, Was Life-Long Friend of A. A. Jackson.

James H. Boyd, one of the oldest residents of this district, passed away peacefully at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Shea, 1915 Lawrence avenue, Chicago, on Tuesday morning, in his 88th year. Mr. Boyd was born at Lennox, Oneida county, New York, on January 15th, 1826. Among his friends there and later in Janesville was his life-long friend A. A. Jackson, who by a strange coincidence also passed away this week, both being buried in Oak Hill cemetery on Wednesday afternoon.

JAMES H. BOYD.

Mr. Boyd was greatly interested in the development of this section of the country, and belonged to the board of supervisors of Harmony township. For many years he acted as superintendent of the Sunday school, held first at the Harmony school house and later at the Harmony town hall, and many of our strong christian farmers in the county today remember with affection his unflinching work and genial presence in the Sunday school. He was a member of the Congregational church, Janesville, and for many years was deeply interested in its affairs.

Shortly after his wife's death in 1889 Mr. Boyd sold his farm to his son-in-law, Frank Story, who afterwards sold it to the present occupant, John Wikom.

The deceased's body was brought to Janesville from Chicago on Wednesday morning, and funeral services were held at the Oak Hill cemetery chapel, where interment took place, the Rev. W. A. Leighton, of the Congregational church, Milton, officiating.

RAIN BADLY NEEDED FOR LATE TOBACCO

Continued Dry Weather Will Cause Its Premature Ripening—Buyers Keep Close Watch.

Rains are badly needed to prevent premature ripening of the large tobacco crop and bring it to proper development otherwise there will be a surplus of short stock. The harvest is on in full swing but will continue another week. The Gazette Reporter this week has the following comment to make on the crop situation:

The tobacco harvest is now under full swing in all sections of the state and growers are employing every available hand and working long hours to secure the crop. A spell of extremely hot weather has placed this work under very trying conditions both as regards labor and in preventing sun burning in the fields. The heavy work of the harvest will continue for another week yet. Rain is badly needed to bring out the development of the later fields or the crop will yet yield a considerable portion of short B stock.

Buyers have been riding the growing districts quite freely, watching the condition of the crop that is going into the sheds, no extensive field buying has yet developed nor is there any likely to occur unless some of the larger operators make the break.

Sampling of last season's packing is proceeding but beyond the sale of a few small lots of old leaf no further sections of importance have come to the surface.

The shipments out of storage reach about 200 cases from this market to all points since last report.

So far the new law seems to be accomplishing its purpose in preventing field buying of the tobacco crop. The large operators are watching one another closely with their men ready to invade the fields should a break occur, but none care to take the initiative or assume the consequences should they bump against the penalties prescribed by contracting for future delivery.

Taking it all around the buyers are generally better satisfied with the law than many of the growers who are cordially condemning its provisions. Most dealers think it a pretty good way to stay out of an early market.

The hot, dry weather which has prevailed, largely since the harvest started, bids fair to shorten the crop more than was expected. The later fields especially need rain to secure the spread of leaf desired after topping, in the absence of which there promises to be more short B stock derived from the growing crop than the market will care to see. In any event the yield is quite likely to be cut below that of the average season in this state. A good rain any time during this week has the following changed the complexion of things amazingly for the hot days have sapped the moisture and hastened the ripening of the fields very rapidly.

WILL IRWIN

Author of

The City that Was, Etc.

"Must avoid disgrace," he muttered to himself; "awful brand on young manhood. Fair women avoid me. Pestilence." At this thought, he stopped a moment, and the situation occurred to him as ridiculous. Whereat he laughed—beneath his breath, as he thought. The vigilant Mrs. Moore, who woke at every night entrance of lodgers, heard the raucous laughter. She leaped out of bed, opened her door a crack, and observed Tommy as he stood balancing himself under the dim point of the chandelier. Obedient to the open door and the watchful eye, he made a turn about the newel-post and began putting one foot cautiously before the other, saying over and over a drunken refrain which ran:

"Hay foot—straw foot—ones goes up and the other goes down." So he vanished from the vision of Mrs. Moore. By similar devices he negotiated the stretch of hall carpet on the second floor, and took the next flight. He was near his haven now—his own room, third floor front. In the dim hall light, he balanced himself and let his tongue play again.

"Energy and perseverance—victory almost won," he said. "Just talk to your feet and let 'em do your work." But the muscular effort of climbing two flights had sent his liquor surging to his head, so that he dizzied and staggered. He caught the banister for support. Then something, real or fancied, caught his eye—something which held his drunken attention. He stooped and clutched at it. The effort overbalanced him and sent him sprawling on his hands into some wet, sticky substance.

"Fearful careless housekeeping," he said as he regained his feet. "forces me to extreme measure wiping hands on shirt." No other place to wipe hands. Renewed necessity arises. He stopped and repeated the phrase with inordinate delight—"renewed necessity for reaching own room." He took the last three yards in a series of staggering bounds which landed him with a thump against his door. He caught the knob, as he fell, and the barrier opened, letting him tumble on his own motion to the floor. He kicked the door shut as he lay prostrate, and then managed to pull himself upright and reach the electric light but not the hall for economy, but electric lights in the rooms. The two tumbles had thrown him into another state of consciousness; his head began to clear, and his motions to him steady. So he turned his predicament still in his mind, to the washstand in the corner.

Above it hung a mirror. In passing, Tommy's gaze swept the glass, leaping back caught on what blushed his face to a sticky wetness. He studied his unsteady figure until it stood straight and stiff, what cleared his head so violently that he could think with all the swiftness of terror.

No! In his dress shirt-front was the imprint of a huge red button. "Whose?" Tommy asked himself one instant. The next, his gaze bounded from the mirror to his own hands.

Blood mired his fingers. On his coat was blood, on his sleeve was blood, on his knees was blood, on his very shoes. He looked at the mirror again. Across his chin zigzagged a dark-red line—his blood.

His first sane thought was that he had cut himself, and was bleeding to death. He looked again at his hands, but saw no wound. Then, drunken memories lingering a little in his sober mind, he remembered the fact and the process of wiping his hands. He ran back to the hallway, turned up the pin-point of light on the gas-jet. There it was, a thin stream of blood, spotted a little where he had fallen in it. And it was widest where it began to flow—at the threshold of Captain Hanks's door. In a weak access of real terror, he fell to pounding on the wall and shouting:

"Murder! Murdering himself, he seized the knob of Captain Hanks's door. The latch gave way—it was not locked. But it opened no more than a foot or two—when something blocked it from behind.

North shrank back from entering such a place of veritable horror. He shouted again, and now Professor Noll, looking in his bathrobe like a strange priest of a night, rushed from his room gasping:

"What's the matter?" The blood, the pale, gibbering, dabbled young man, were explanation enough. He himself opened the door as far as it could go, and edged into the room.

"Matches, quick!" he called from within. Tommy North found a match-case, and the mastery of his own mind, with the example of Professor Noll, drew him after Professor Noll. He lighted a match, held it up, it flared and blazed until it burned his fingers. In that flickering, transitory light they saw all that it was necessary to see.

Captain Hanks's body blocked the door. He lay dressed in his pajamas, if you didn't do this thing you're all right," and then to the doctor: "My name is Madame Le Grange. I own the house at 442—across the street. Never mind my dearth of money. Mr. Harding, who showed signs of coming out of her stupor and following. With a businesslike air, she bustled upstairs, called police headquarters, informed them there had been a murder at 442 and the doctor waited. Coroner Lipschutz—also, they had better send some policemen. This done, she sought a moment in thought before she descended.

In the hall, she met the regular patrolman who had received the news at last. The limit of the law had forbidden the augmented crowd at the door to follow him; he was ascending alone. The sight of this woman in her fashionable clothes—was it her compelling look of command—stopped him.

"Listen," she said, "there's only a second. Never mind who you are, look at this." She produced the news and worn piece of paper which she had drawn from her bag a minute before. "To the police," it read. "Any matter that concerns the bearer, Mrs. Rosalie Le Grange, is to be referred to me. I request you to give her the greatest discretion."

"Inspector Martin McGee," "Not a word," pursued Rosalie Le Grange. "Now mind I didn't see this thing and I don't know any more about it as you. But it's your job to tip me off to the reserves as soon as they come—make them understand that they ain't to stop me whatever I do. And remember—now the woman entered in a meaningful way, as if here just as quick as you could—not a second later—I'll stick to that. Now get inside." She waited a moment, before she followed him.

Tommy North, green now, was sitting on a couch in his ghastly room. At that moment, Senator Estrilla came down the stairs from his sister's room. He had opened his raincoat, and his hat was still wet. He had turned his hat him, but an occasional drop fell.

"My seester is better," he said. "Oh, can I assist?" And while he helped the men to cover the body, he listened to the scattered explanations from the women.

Now the reserves had come; and after them, the Coroner and the detectives. They cleared out the house, looking on who seemed to them pertinent witnesses. At a signal from Rosalie Le Grange they detained her for a time, on the ground that she had arrived suspiciously early. The first organized search for the criminal summered down to Tommy North, although even Mrs. Moore admitted that he had entered only a minute before the body was discovered. In the midst of the investigation, a new suspect presented itself. The house was to be sealed while the police investigated. The innocent would have to find some other dwelling-place. That suited her. Mrs. Harding repaired, she wouldn't sleep there again, wherever Mrs. Moore, declaring she was ruined, fell again to weeping. And suddenly she who called herself Madame Le Grange stepped forward into the huddled distressed group.

"I haven't introduced myself," she said, with easy masterful calm. "but I've just opened the house at 442 as a boarding-house. You ain't going to hold me, of course—this to the police. And, anyhow, you know where to find me in case you want me. There's room tonight in my house for you all. She turned, with her eternal air of mistress in any situation, to Miss Harding. "Come, dress and pack up your things, my dear. We can move your trunks tomorrow." Mechanically, Miss Harding obeyed, and then Miss Jones. Suddenly, Mrs. Estrilla, who had been ministering to Mrs. Moore by the door, spoke up and asked:

"My seester, too?" "She's sick, ain't she?" inquired Mrs. Le Grange, as if for an instant that thing needs it worst of all. She answered her own question. "Come on!" She dashed away, lightly in spite of her bulk, Estrilla following.

While Rosalie Le Grange was preparing to move the invalid on the top floor, the police and the Coroner straightened out affairs a little. There was much play in Tommy North. If he had played the craven in the first rush of his gruesome discovery, it was because he had been in a state of tense depression, which comes with the sudden departure of drunkenness. He became defiant now; whereupon the police began to bully. While they were trying to make Mrs. Moore admit that she had not seen Tommy North come up the stairs, the detective sergeant put a sneering question to her—

"Well, who else could have done it? Who else has been here?"

And the inrush of memory brought a little shriek from Mrs. Moore. "Mr. Wade—the gentleman who called tonight!" she cried. All at once her suspicions left her. In the evening—and that, in the doctor's opinion was just about the time when Captain Hanks must have died. Mr. Wade had called two or three times before, always at night. Tramping, she found his card. "Lawrence Wade, Curfew Club," in the plated tray at the hall door. Suddenly Miss Harding, who had been refusing all light on the events of the evening, gave a little shriek.

"Why they were quarreling when I went," she cried. Then she stopped. The police turned on her. In a tumble of words and emotions, she told what she knew. Mr. Wade's late call, the high words, the fact that none had heard a sound from Captain Hanks's room after Wade left the house—that was enough for the Coroner and the detectives. They packed Tommy North—sober, pale, but now thoroughly collected—into the patrol wagon, sent the hue and cry to the Curfew Club after Mr. Wade, put the house under guard and called their day's work done.

And the rest of the Moore establishment, having first received a dreadful warning concerning the fate of absconding witnesses, finished the uneasy night under the ministrations of Rosalie Le Grange at 442.

The Poet Philosopher

BY WALT MASON

Where are the gents who were making the muck, long, long ago, earning in fifth an occasional buck, long, long ago? Where are the gifted but famous clowns, robbing our angels of harps and of crowns, writing up tales of "The Shame of the Town," long, long ago, long ago? Do you remember the LONG AGO fool magazines long, long ago, wading in muck to the top of their jeans, long, long ago? Do you remember the course that they trod, proving the world was deserted by God, showing up men as a faker and fraud, long ago, long ago. Knew you the muckers and delivers and s'ch, long ago, doing their stunts in the dirtiest ditch, long, long ago? Where are they now, and oh, what have they done? Where are the triumphs they thought they had won? Were are the crusades so blithely begun long ago, long ago? All the muckrakers went off to the dump, long, long ago; they were too fond to be cleaned at the pump, long ago; now we are preaching a different creed, holding that men are not monsters of greed; most of us heard all the howls that we need long, long ago, long ago.

High-Bred Dogs on Show. Oakland, Cal., Sept. 5.—Scores of thoroughbred dogs, representing all of the popular breeds, were on display at the Piedmont Pavilion today at the opening of the annual bench show of the Oakland and Alameda County Kennel Club. Judging was commenced soon after the opening this morning and will be continued until the close of the exhibition tomorrow night.

The lighterman, a native of the Emerald Isle, shouted in reply: "Are ye the captain of that vessel?" "No," answered the officer. "Then spake to yer animals," said Pat. "I'm the captain of this."

Reason for It. Grandma—"In my day girls were more modest and reserved than they are now." May—"That's because you were taught that modesty and reserve were more alluring to the men." Judge.
